USPA NEWS - HRP release:

Police have charged a Halifax man for publishing an intimate image of another person without their consent.

Halifax Regional Police:
(HRP release)
Police have charged a Halifax man for publishing an intimate image of another person without their consent.
In July 2025, it was reported to police that Frank Magazine published an intimate image online of another person without their consent.
On September 9th, after a thorough investigation, police arrested Frank Magazine's managing editor without incident.

Andrew Douglas, 47, is scheduled to appear in Halifax provincial court at a later date to face the charge of sharing an intimate image without consent contrary to Section 162.1 of the Criminal Code.
The Criminal Code of Canada prohibits sharing intimate images of another person, including photos and videos, where there is a reasonable expectation of privacy. To report an incident to police, call 902-490-5020. Anonymous tips can be sent to Crime Stoppers by calling toll-free 1-800-222-TIPS (8477), submitting a secure web tip at www.crimestoppers.ns.ca or by using the P3 Tips app.
Stay safe, be kind and respectful to those around you, and use good judgement when choosing to share personal information and images.
